Dr. Richard Timmins — Commencement Address

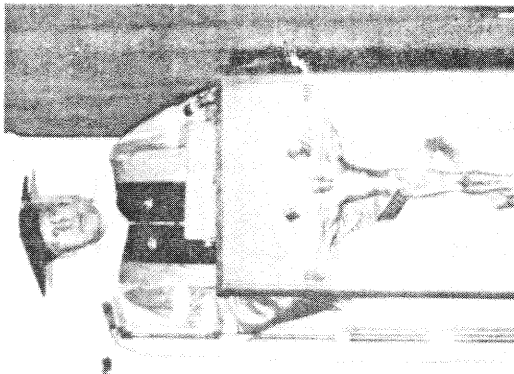

Dr. Richard Timmins, Ph.D., presented the Commencement Address to the seniors, board members, and relatives and families of the Class of 1975. An excerpt from Dr. Timmins' speech follows:

"As for the profession as a whole, the future of education and research should be a central issue. Since the U.S. Office of Education recognized the Council on Chiropractic Education as the official agency to accredit chiropractic colleges, the national scene has changed markedly.

The fact that CCE has received status from the U.S. Office of Education will, in the future, be considered a major milestone for the profession. While the situations are not parallel, CCE recognition can serve chiropractic education in the same fashion as the Flexner Report stimulated medical education. Soon after the turn of the century, Abraham Flexner did an in-depth study of medical schools and his report was devastating. As a result, medical schools took a serious look at themselves and concerned themselves with quality professional training.

In regard to chiropractic colleges, the CCE recognition will be the stimulus for these institutions to retain accreditation or to acquire it based on sound professional training programs. State agencies are rapidly establishing guidelines for licensure which accept CCE as the agency setting standards for the profession. As states adopt these, licenses to practice will require graduation from a chiropractic college having status with the CCE. As such, institutions will be

New Clinic Purchased

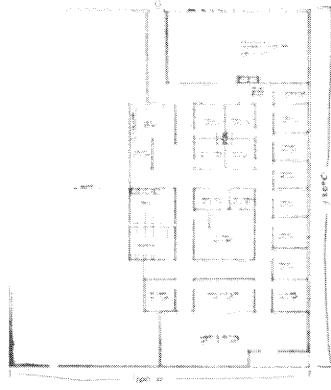

Western States Chiropractic College has recently purchased a piece of property at 21640 S.E. Stark, Gresham, Oregon. The building on the property is 12,000 square feet and is large enough for expansion needs for the next several decades.

According to the Real Estate Committee of the Board of Trustees, the property cost approximately $174,000 and will need an extensive amount of remodeling before clinics will be operable.

The site at 63rd and Foster will continue to be used as a clinic. Satellite clinics in several parts of the Portland metropolitan area are in the long range plans.

An active program of soliciting funds for use in the renovation of the new clinic and equipment for the plant is being carried out. Help is also needed to meet the mortgage requirements of the clinic and the college campus.

Summer School

For the first time in recent history W.S.C.C. is conducting a summer school quarter. This will allow students to complete the four year course in three years of twelve months each, plus a quarter of clinic.

There are 101 students attending classes. These include transfer students. Classes are conducted daily from 7:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Evening nutrition classes are being conducted during the summer for the public. Instructors for the class are Oliver Titrud, M.S., M. Ed., D.C., C.A.S.; Richard Brouse, B.A., M.A.; and William C. Davis, Ph. D.

The objective of the course is to prepare the interested lay person with a working knowledge of the nutritional approach to health. Programs of this nature will be held at W.S.C.C. throughout the year and will be advertised to the lay public.

Dr. Gallagher Trophy Goes to Swafford

Dr. Oliver Titrud, W.S.C.C. Academic Dean, presented the Dr. William H. Gallagher Trophy to Dr. Jarold Swafford at the graduation ceremony on June 6.

Each year the Gallagher Trophy is presented to the most exceptional member of the class in terms of attitude and willingness to help during the course of study.

Seniors Celebrate

An evening of fun and awards was held on June 5th at the "Top of the Cosmo" where the Senior Class of 1975 invited faculty, staff, and board members to share their jubilation.

Many awards were given by the M.C. for the evening, Dr. Frank Card. Class historian, Dr. Jarold Swafford, gave everyone a colorful and sometimes hysterical look at the past; while Dr. Tom Richards, the Class President, made some serious remarks about the future of the college and the need for support from every graduate.

required to sustain a level of excellence as prescribed by CCE, which in turn is responsible to the U.S. Office of Education for monitoring the performance of the colleges. This can only bode well for the future of chiropractic education.

It must be said, however, that the attainment of CCE recognition was not just a victory for CCE and the colleges. It was a victory for the profession, but the responsibilities of the profession cannot be minimized. The profession has the responsibility to support CCE and the colleges so that recognition will be sustained. And it has to be done, as a minimum, in these two ways.

1. Graduates of chiropractic colleges must give financial and moral support to their institutions in order that they may continue to develop, improve, and prosper.

2. Graduates of these colleges must encourage and support the colleges in an expansion of continuing education programs and in research programs. The profession can progress only if these two elements are followed energetically.

Finally, the change in the profession is rapid today and will accelerate. This causes apprehension on the part of some, for many and varied reasons as Alvin Toffler reported in his book Future Shock. But change is everpresent and has been so always. We need to think of change as part of the process of living, to prepare for it, to accept it, and to make the best of it. We cannot simply be; we must become.

What the profession becomes will be up to these graduates because shortly they will be the Profession.

Today is the Alpha, not the Omega. The Alpha is the known factor; the Omega is the unknown. What that will be is up to you, the graduates and the profession. You can soar to new heights or fall in failure. It's up to you."

Samuel G. Warren, President
Western States Chiropractic College
2900 N.E. 132nd Avenue
Portland, Oregon 97230
Dear Mr. Warren;

June 20, 1975

It is my pleasure to notify you that $500 tuition grants from the SPRINGWALL TRUST have been awarded to the following Western States Chiropractic College students

Charles R. Hathaway
Ronald Plamondon

These students have all been individually notified of their selection as a recipient. Upon certification by the college that they have enrolled in September, a check equal to the total amount will be forwarded to your college from Dr. Arthur Schierholz, treasurer of FCER.

For your information, the number of scholarships awarded to each CCE-affiliated school was based on the number of seniors during the academic year beginning in September.

Springwall is proud to be able to assist these worthy students at your college.

Sincerely,
Jean Dyar, Trustee

Bookstore . . .

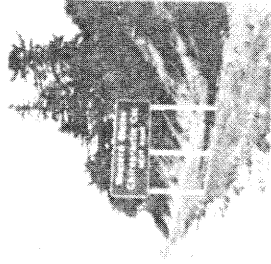

The response from the doctors in the field has been good. Each month we hear from new doctors requesting books or equipment. This month the bookstore would like to offer two exceptional books. The first is Anatomico Roentgenographic Studies of the Spine by Lee Hadley, M.D. This volume includes over nine hundred roentgenographic images correlated with actual anatomical conditions. The broad scope of the book reveals in its table of contents the cervical spine, changes in bone texture, spinal curvatures, observations at the lumbo sacral level, and many other subjects. This book sells for $19.50 (includes postage).

The second book is A Guide to Physical Examination by Barbara Bates, M.D. This book combines on each page the technique of examination and examples of abnormalities with clearly labeled drawings. There are over 350 pages dedicated to examining the neurologic system, the skin, the neck and head, musculoskeletal system, and so on. An excellent book to rely on for physical examinations. This book sells for $19.50 (includes postage).

A recent addition to the bookstore is the Vita-Lite by Jewel. Vita-Lite is the world's only sunlight-simulating fluorescent. These fluorescents provide the broadest spectrum of light that any fluorescent can produce. On a scale of 100 (for normal sunlight) the Vita-Lite scores 91 where ordinary fluorescents score 68. What this means to you is more natural light. First, in your x-ray view box this means more contrast. Those subtle differences in gray become more distinct. Secondly, in your office it means less eye strain to your staff and patients. Studies have shown that children in school study longer and are less hyperactive when the classroom is lighted with Vita-Lite. Vita-Lite comes in 18", 24", 36", and 48" lengths. Please write for more information and prices.

In the future when your needs are books or equipment in the healing arts please contact us first.
